Learning Objectives

By completing this course, students will:

This course aims to improve students’ conversational skills by improving typical practical structural patterns in conversation such as initiating and maintaining predictable conversations on familiar topics such as family, occupation, recreation, travel, and education, as well as narrating events in detail in past, present, and future timeframes. At the completion of this course, students will have expanded their vocabulary and will be able to produce more complex sentences connected in paragraphs. While studying a variety of topics, the students will also be able to handle practical conversational situations, narration, and description, while improving their grammar and listening comprehension skills.

Course Prerequisites

This conversation course builds on skills acquired after completing typically a basic level course of instruction in a U.S. university, and furthers the development of communication skills through conversation. The topics of discussion include topics from current life and other topics of interest taken from a variety of resources. Students need to possess basic vocabulary that is necessary to develop their communicative and comprehension skills. Students’ placement is contingent upon a written and an oral exam.

Methods of Instruction

Classes mainly take the form of discussions centered on a specific topic and grammatical subject. The communicative nature of this course will allow for the integration of all skills: speaking, listening, reading, and writing. Pair and group work will be highly encouraged. A task-based approach will be used to engage students in various forms of verbal collaboration. Moreover, students will be given texts from the media and taught vocabulary that will strengthen their ability to discuss social (and other) matters that are different from everyday life topics. Vocabulary games and exercises will be part of the instruction. Grammar exercises will be assigned to build connectors typically used in complex utterances. Role-plays will constitute an essential part of improving speaking. Survival role-plays and situations with complication scenarios will be conducted on a regular basis. Teaching methods will be adjusted to individual learning styles represented in class (typically determined by a cognitive test at the beginning of each semester). Error correction techniques are in accordance with the linguistic research in the field.

Quizzes

5% each
There will be five short vocabulary quizzes during the semester. These quizzes will test your mastery of the vocabulary for the topics, covered in this class. Quizzes will involve multiple-choice questions and exercises, asking you to identify the root for a particular word, as well as synonyms and antonyms, when appropriate.

Homework

There will be different types of homework during the semester, from textbook exercises to written essays. It is important that you do your work at home and by the assigned date. Although not all home assignments are graded in class, the quality of your homework will be noted and evaluated accordingly.

Midterm Exam
Final Exam

Both Midterm and Final exams are held in the form of an oral exam. It will include a 20-minute one-on-one conversation on the course topics (refer to the Weekly schedule) and a small dialogue with the instructor. Students are expected to demonstrate their mastery of the vocabulary of the weekly topics (synonyms, antonyms), words that contain the same roots, use verbs with prefixes and in general be active participants of the conversation during the exam.

Class Participation

Students are expected to take part in activities, conversations and dialogues offered by the instructor during course sessions. Please, come to class having done your homework, as topics for the discussions will be based on the vocabulary you’ve learned at home.

Class Attendance

Attendance is crucial for successful completion of the class. Students are allowed to have two unexcused absences for each course for the whole semester program. These allowed unexcused absences should be used for situations such as minor illnesses without a doctor’s note or personal situations that prevent the student from attending the class. Allowed unexcused absences should not be used in a planned way for travel or other activities.

Unexcused absences beyond the limit of two will lower a student’s grade by 2 points on the 100-point scale each. For example, if your overall score in the class is 90 (an equivalent of A-) and you have had three unexcused absences, your final score will be 88 (B+).
